Introduction of Computer Technology in Government Offices

6464. SHRI BHUPINDER SINGH MANN: Will the Minister of FINANCE be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that establishment expenditure of Government offices is considerably high affecting developmental plans of the country as major chunk of money goes for maintaining them;

(b) if so, the details thereof;

(c) to what extent Government have been successful in reducing establishment expenditure by introducing latest modes of efficient technology like computer; and

(d) by what time, Government envisage linking whole of them with computer network?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF FINANCE (SHRI M.V. CHANDRASHEKHAR MURTHY): (a) and (b). The share of the estimated establishment expenditure on Central Government employees (excluding Defence Services Personnel) in the annual Budget for the last three years is as follows:—

Years	Percentage
1992-93	10
1993-94	9
i994-95	9

The question of developmental plans of the country being adversely affected by the establishment expenditure brought out above does not arise.

(c) and (d) Introduction of computers has resulted in effective monitoring of medium and large plan projects by giving on line computer communication networks support. At present, Govt, is operating satellite based data communication network called NICNET, across the country which connects the Central Govt., State Govts, and district administration offices. "Electronic mail" has also been made available which has significantly brought down the need for paper based communication among various Govt, organisations. This alone has cut down communication cost by about 40%.
